Lek and Luca were at school talking about the jobs they'd like to do when they were older.

Lots of students wanted to be doctors or teachers, and one student even wanted to be an astronaut.

Once Lek and Luca arrived home they carried on the conversation.

"What do you really want to be when you grow up?" Luca asked Lek.

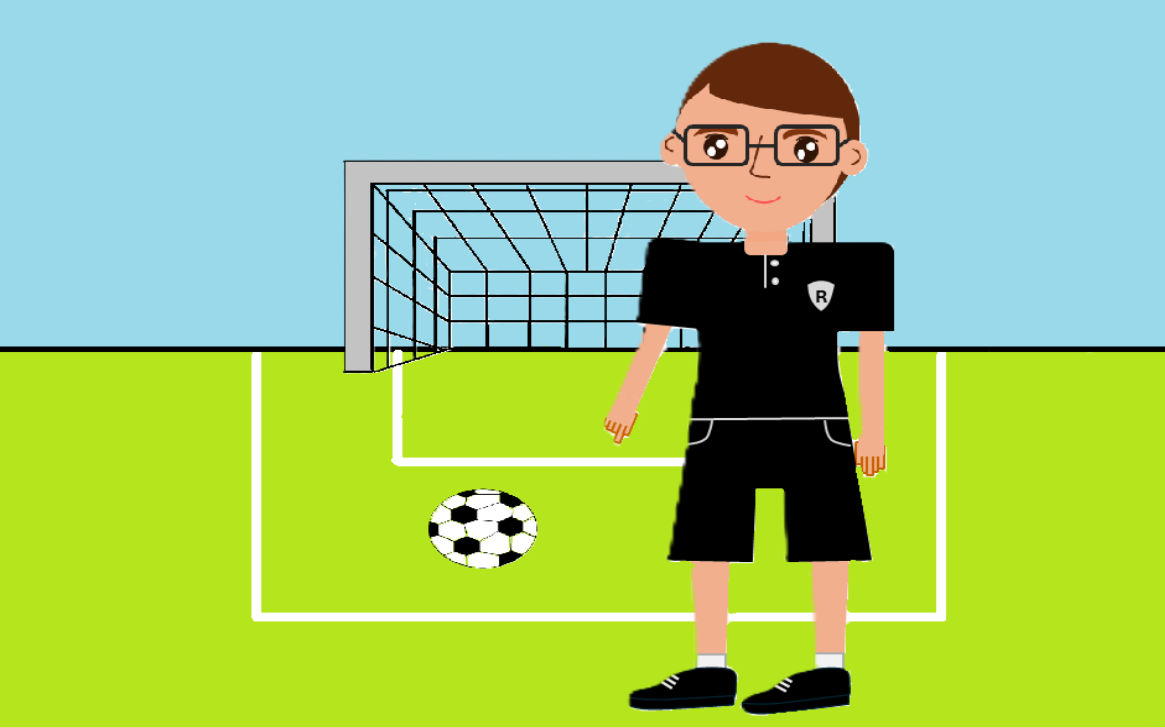

"I've always dreamed of being a zookeeper," Lek replied. "I'd have a pet tiger that could follow me around the zoo and help take care of everything."

"That sounds a bit dangerous," Luca gulped.

"Well, how about you Luca, what would you like to be when you grow up?"

"That's easy, I'd be a firefighter and help put out big fires, and rescue cats stuck in trees," Luca replied excitedly.

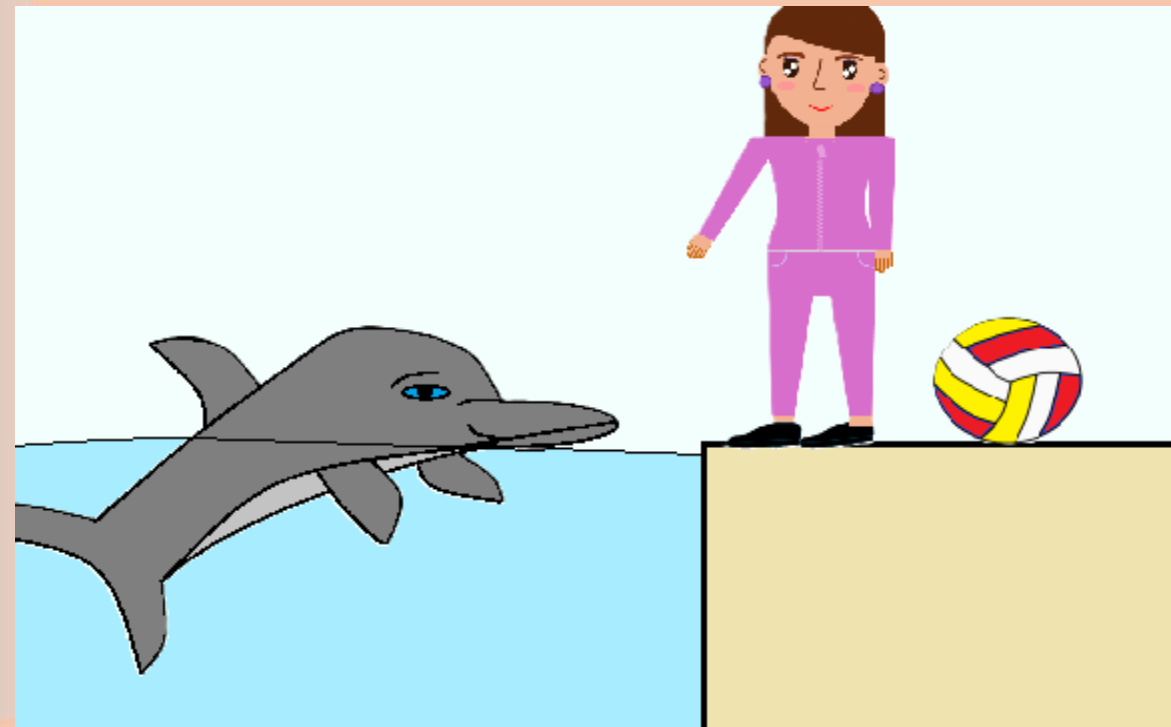

Mum was in the living room. "Hi Mum, what would be your perfect job?" asked Luca.

"I think I'd like to train dolphins. I love the way they play and they're very smart."

"That sounds really fun," said Luca.

Lek and Luca found Dad in the kitchen. "Hi Dad, what would be your perfect job?" Lek asked.

"That's a good question," said Dad. "I'd be a football referee so I could watch football all day long."

This made Lek and Luca giggle.

Grandpa was in the garden. "Hi grandpa, if you could go back to work what job would you like to do?"

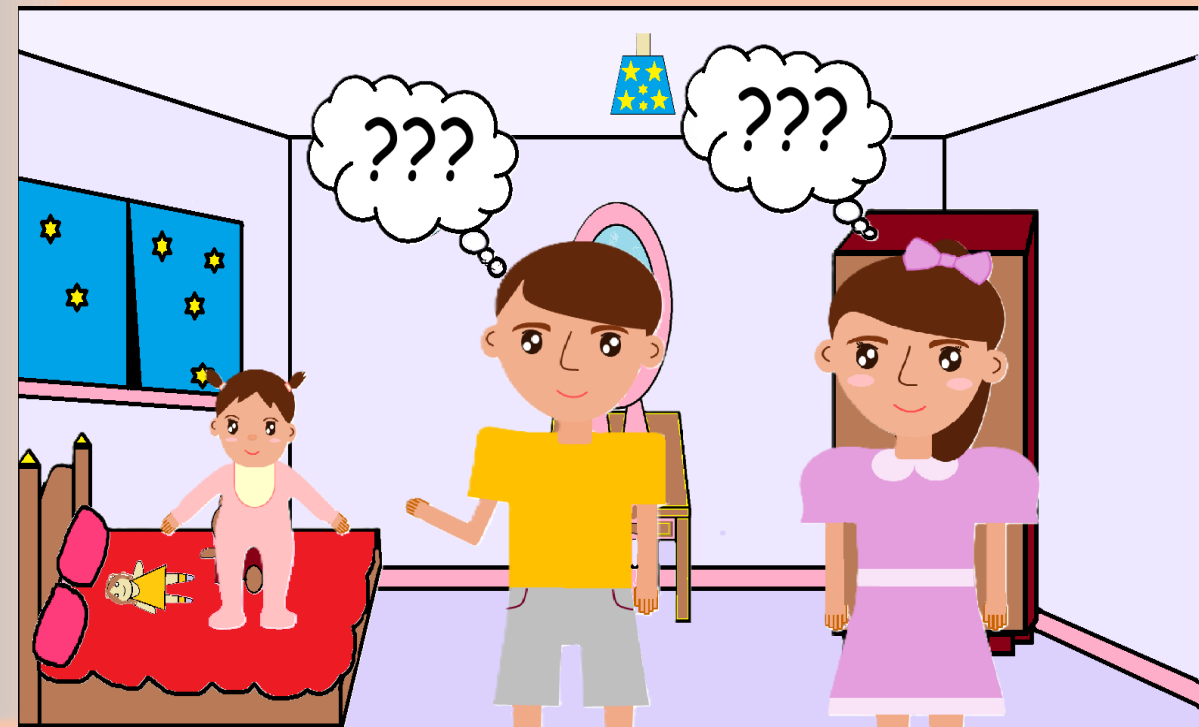

"Well, I really love reading, so I think I'd work as a librarian. I could spend hours with my favourite books."

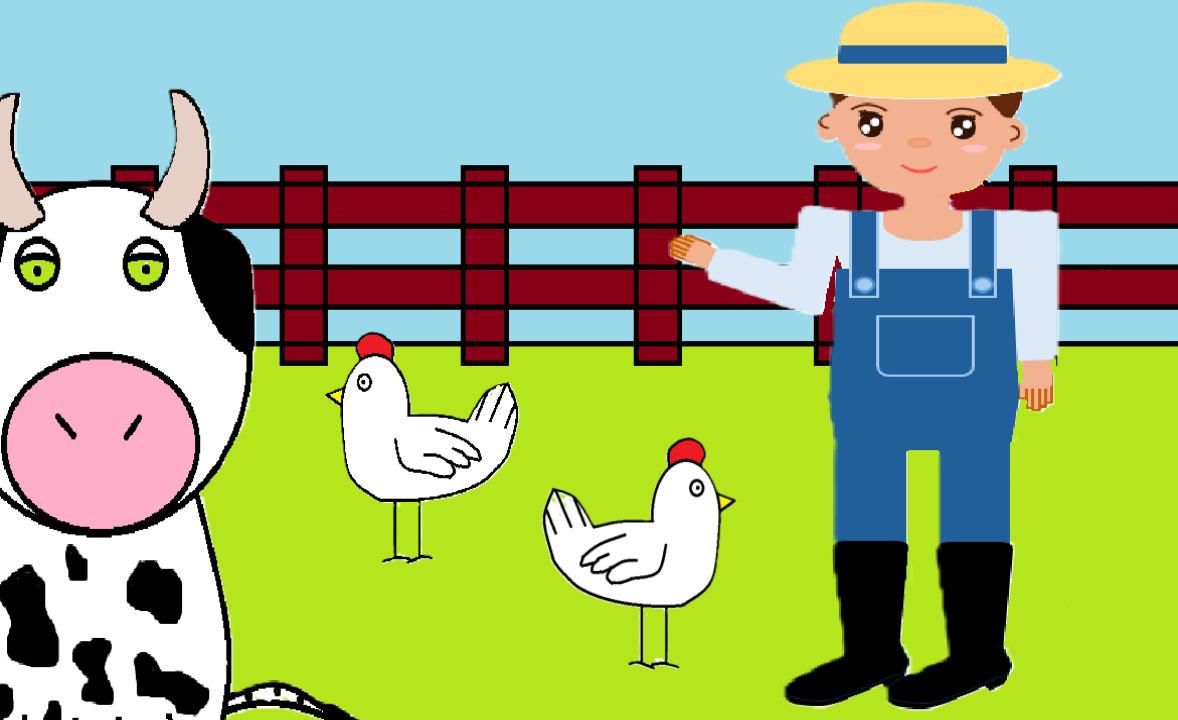

"That does sound peaceful," said Lek.

Lek and Luca had one person left to ask.

They found Baby in her bedroom.

"I wonder what Baby will do when she grows up?" Lek asked.

"She loves her stuffed animals, so maybe she'll be a farmer," replied Luca.

"Baby is so clever I think she could be anything she wants to be," said Lek.

"But, as long as she's happy that's just fine."
