

A Parcel for Lek and Luca

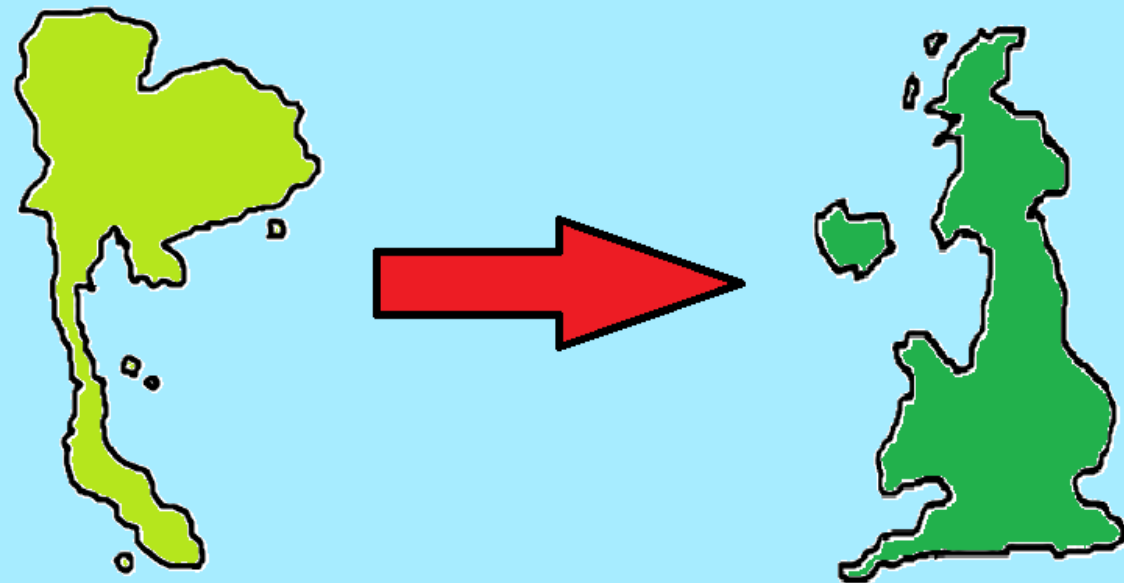

Written by Russell Holton
Illustrated by Russell & Somkamon Holton

Lek and Luca were waiting for a surprise parcel. It was coming from Thailand, and had been posted by their Aunty Min.

"I wonder how they transport a parcel from Thailand?" Lek wondered.

"It's so far away from Britain."

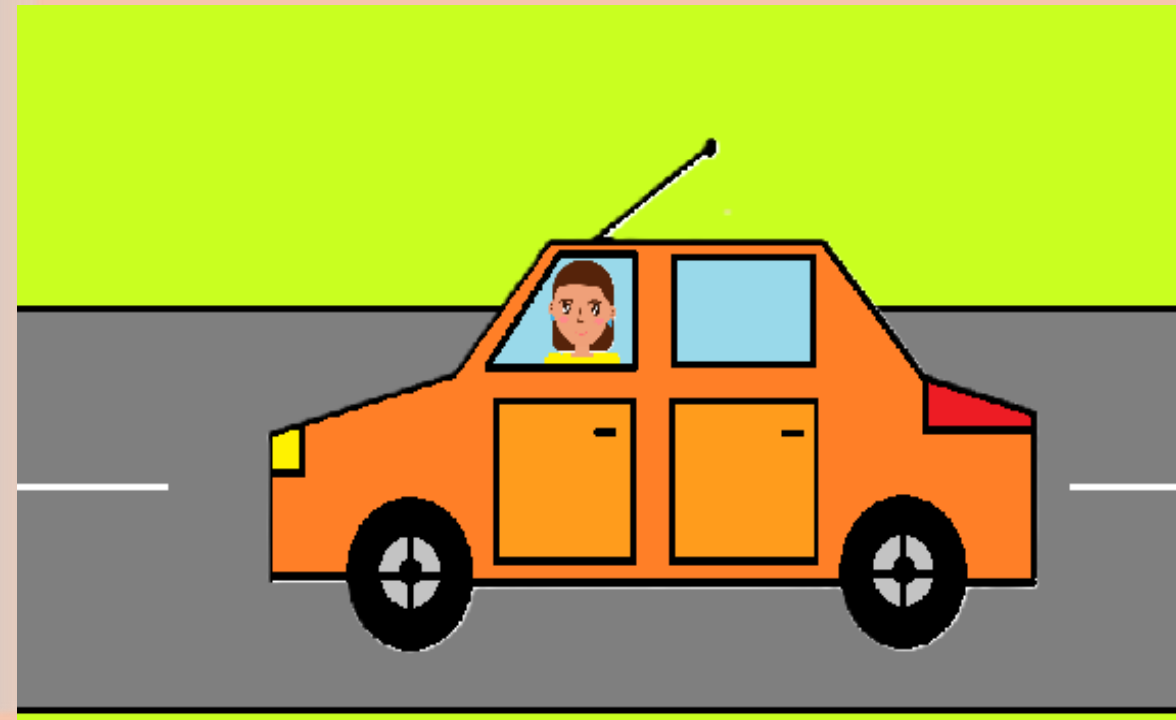

Luca had a more sensible suggestion.

"Aunty Min drives a car, so first she must deliver the parcel to the post office in Thailand."

Lek thought about it and imagined a strange winged horse flying through the sky with a parcel in its mouth.

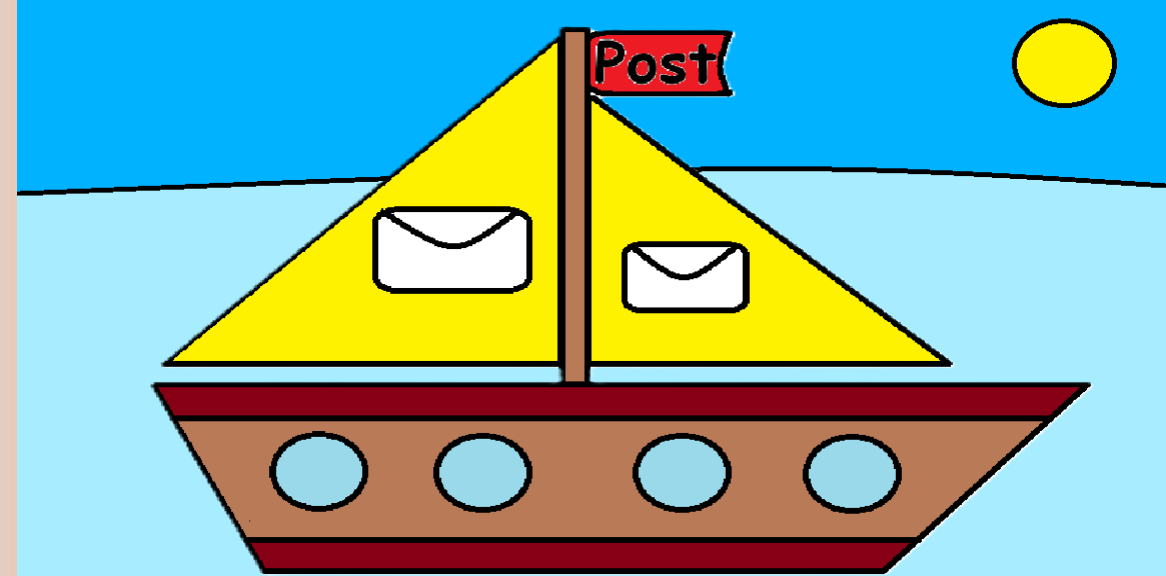

"Next it must be sorted and sent to the airport, and put on a plane," Luca continued.

"Maybe it could come by boat," suggested Lek.

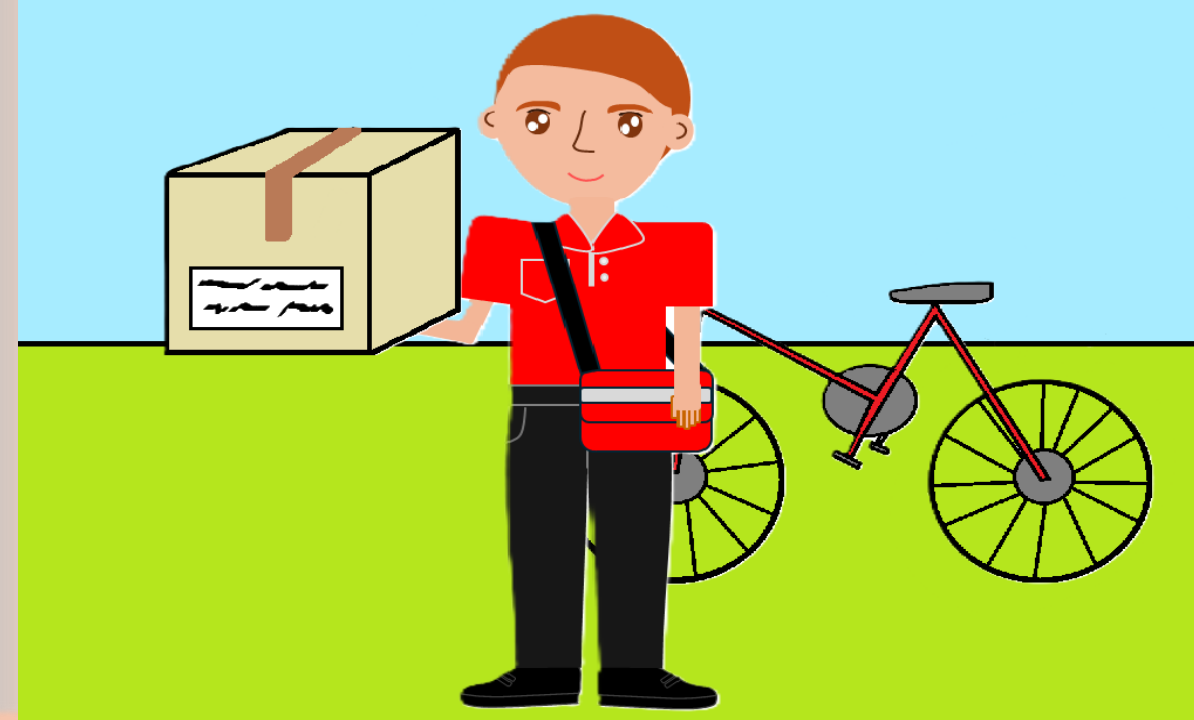

"No way, that's far too slow," replied Luca.

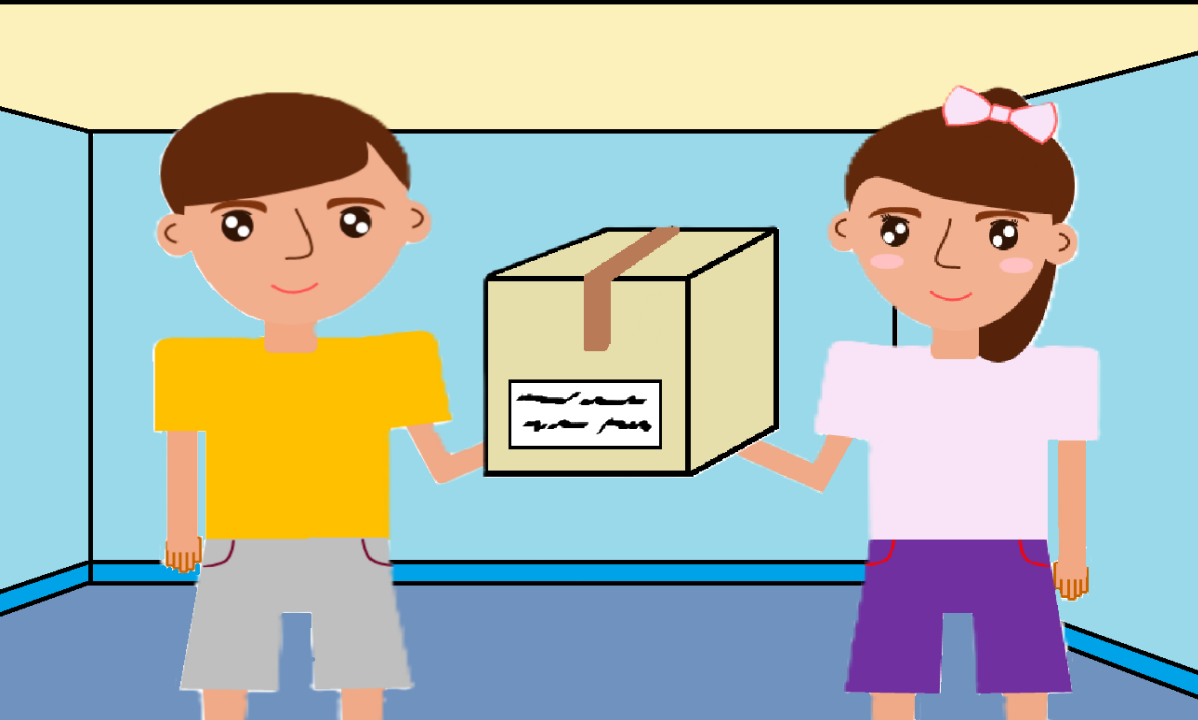

"Once it arrives in Britain it can be loaded on to a lorry and sent to our local post office," Luca said.

"Then a post person can deliver it to our house on a bicycle or in a van," Lek replied.

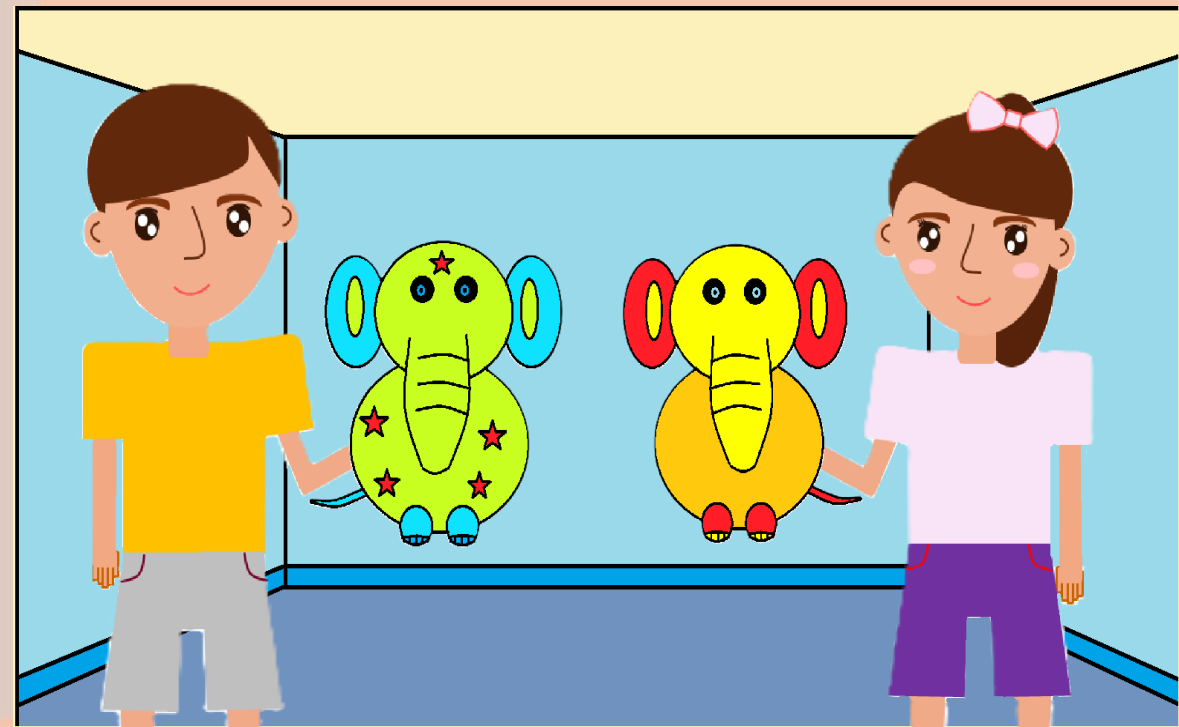

A few days later there was a knock at the door. The post person had arrived with the parcel from Aunty Min.

Lek opened the parcel and revealed two bright fluffy elephants.

"Of course," said Lek.
"Thailand is famous for its beautiful elephants."

Thanks for reading!!
Please visit www.lekandluca.com
for the free printable story.

