

New Socks for Dad

Written by Russell Holton
Illustrated by Russell & Somkamon Holton

It was nearly Dad's birthday and Lek wanted to give him something special. She decided to knit him some socks, but she had no idea what colour to choose.

"Why don't you look at your favourite things and choose a colour that way," Mum suggested.

"That's a great idea," Lek replied.

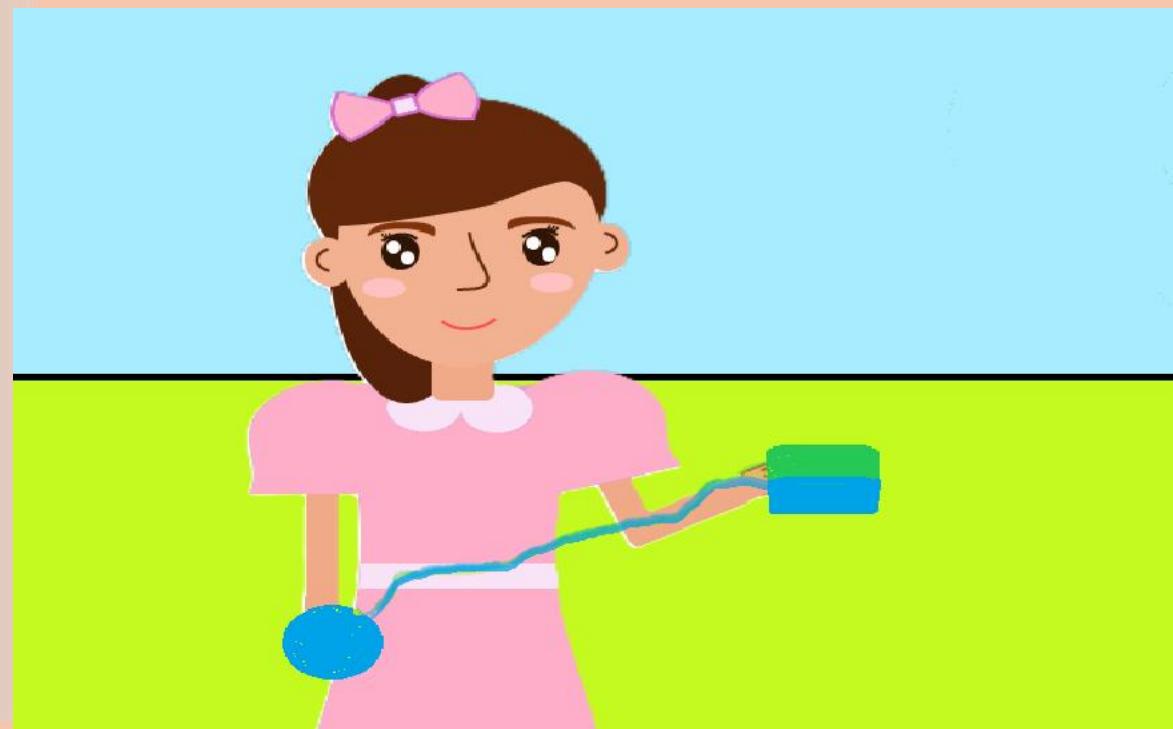

Lek looked outside in the garden.

"I love the fluffy green grass so I think I will knit some green socks," she said.

Lek started knitting when she noticed the bright blue sky.

The blue sky is so pretty she thought, and so she continued to knit the socks with blue yarn.

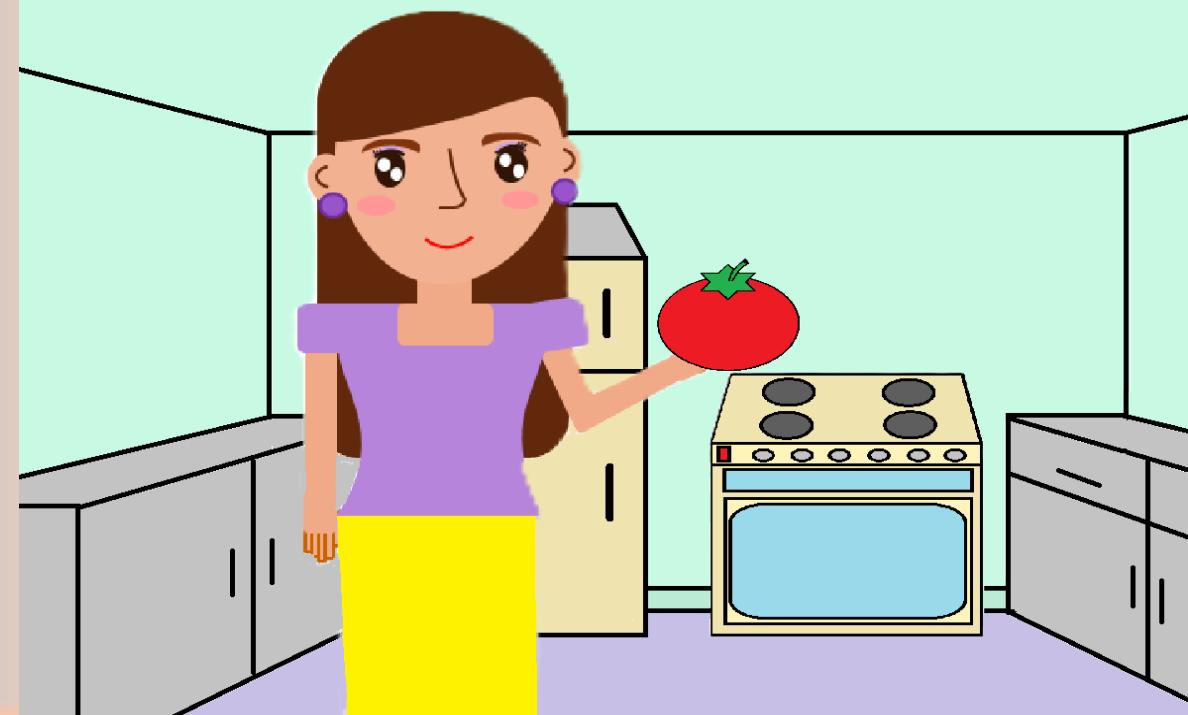

As she knitted, she noticed some beautiful yellow flowers.

Yellow is a lovely colour thought Lek and continued to knit her socks with yellow yarn.

It began to get cold, so Lek went indoors. Mum was making a salad with bright red tomatoes.

Red is an amazing colour thought Lek and continued to knit her socks with red yarn.

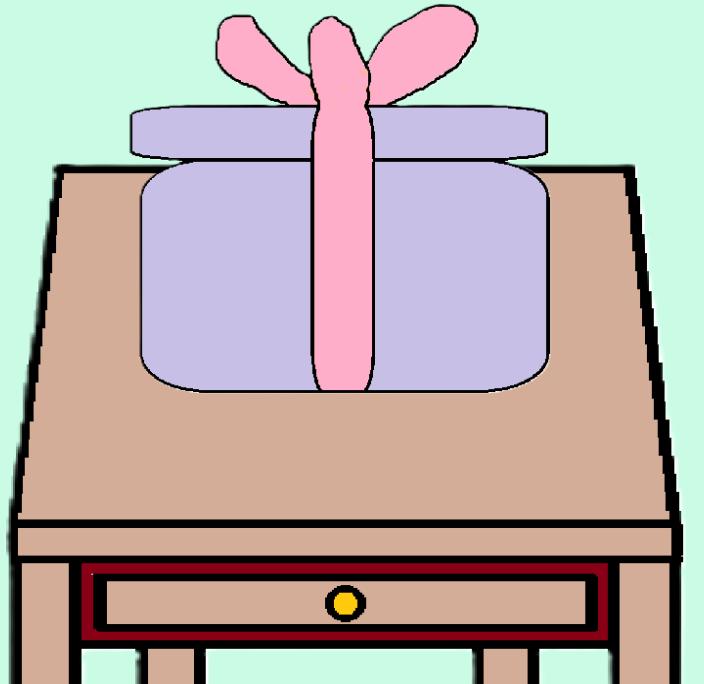

Luca came home wearing his favourite purple football shirt.

That shirt looks nice thought Lek and continued to knit her socks with purple yarn.

Lek had been knitting all day and felt hungry. She picked up an orange.

Oranges are a wonderful colour thought Lek and continued to knit her socks with orange yarn.

Lek finally finished knitting the socks and wrapped them up ready for Dad's birthday.

Dad's birthday finally arrived. He opened his present and pulled out the colourful socks.

"Wow, these are perfect, they're made with all of my favourite colours. Thanks Lek, I can't wait to put them on," he said.

Thanks for reading!!

Please visit www.lekandluca.com
for the free printable story.

